WORLDPRIDE
& EUROGAMES★
COPENHAGEN
AND MALMÖ
12-22 AUGUST 2021

Welcome to the Malmö Event Program.

Take a look and plan your days.

Welcome to Malmö!

Together with Copenhagen, Malmö is proud to be hosting the world's biggest LGBTQIA+ event this year, WorldPride, which includes EuroGames, a Human Rights summit on LGBTQIA+ refugees, borders and migration, and an extensive Arts & Culture programme!

We have had the pleasure of curating an 11-day programme featuring contributors from across the globe - we would love you to join us (IRL or online) at any number of the 200+ diverse and thought-provoking events that will be staged at venues across Malmö.

A major focal point will be WorldPride House at Malmö Live, with discussions, seminars, debates and talks from people with lived LGBTQIA+ experiences, with the international summit on immigration, borders, and refugees, taking centre stage.

Not to be missed, will be the sporting events as part of EuroGames, Youth Pride, WorldPride Park, queer theatre and live performances and Sweden's biggest ever queer film festival, and not to forget the parties and of course the Opening Parade.

Throughout the Covid 19 pandemic, the LGBTQIA+ community all over the world has been severely impacted, so we believe that now more than ever, it is important that we (metaphorically) hold hands and stand together as a community.

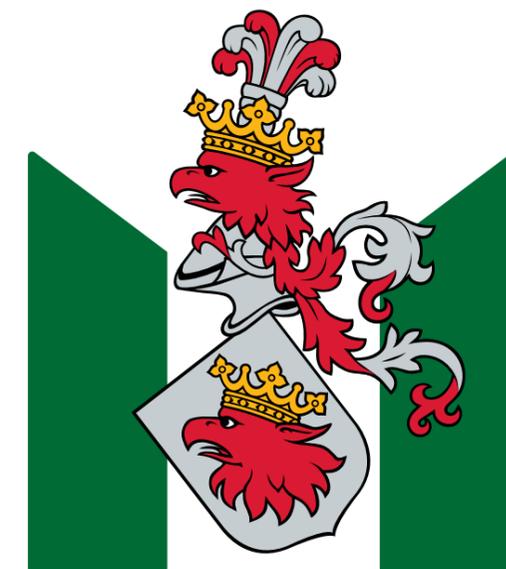

We are immensely proud to live in a country that has come so far. However, we still have a long way to go so we will fight for those who need our support, we will march for those who can't, and we will be visible for those who feel invisible.

We stand together in solidarity, love, and friendship, including the whole global LGBTQIA+ community in this WorldPride.

We hope you enjoy your time with us during WorldPride and EuroGames 2021.

Yours sincerely,

The Malmö Pride board

| SWE |

At Indigo, dykes from all over Scania danced during the decades around the turn of the millennium.

In the 1970s, Malmö and Lund's homosexuals gather in the activist group HAML to run Homo phone, a telephone counseling service for homosexuals. In Gustav Adolf's square, gay men met across class boundaries in the 1920s, when homosexuality was still punishable (and they were caught). These and a large number of other stories from Malmö's LGBTQIA+ history are presented in a new anthology. In addition, a map guide, produced by Malmö City Archives, and a digital map in the app Be here then will also be presented. Organizers: Institute for studies in Malmö's history, Malmö city archive and Be here then.

Queer Environmentalism

14:00 – 15:00 | Free event. Book your digital ticket.

| ENG |

There is a growing movement across the world to promote sustainability and mitigate the consequences of climate change. The intersection of LGBTQIA+ activism with environmentalism links with the marginalisation faced by queer people. A sustainable future must be grounded in the values of equality and equity – to promote human rights and ensure the constructive input of queer people in environmental policy. We present the structural and social challenges faced by queer environmentalists in promoting sustainability; further, we present the positive impacts of a queer perspective on environmentalism to meet the challenges of climate change and build sustainable societies.

Lesbian Moms, Their Children and Asylum: A case study of AB v Finland

15:30 – 17:30 | Green Room | Free event.
Book your digital ticket.

| ENG | RUS |

In 2021, the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child found that Finland failed to consider the best interests of the child of a lesbian couple when rejecting his asylum request, and to protect him against a real risk of irreparable harm when the family had no other choice but to return to Russia. Discussants will be unpacking the ground-breaking decision, the first asylum-related case from the UN system involving a child who is facing specific risks on the grounds of his mothers' sexual orientation.

How to create an intrinsically inclusive workplace – best practice and other learnings

16:30 – 17:30 | Purple Room |  | Free event. Book your physical ticket. Book your digital ticket.

| ENG |

One of the seven grounds of discrimination covered by law in Sweden is transgender identity and expression. However, in order to argue that discrimination has taken place from a legal point of view, you have to assume a binary model of gender. There's a big difference between not openly excluding non binary people and actively creating an including work environment where everyone feels welcome and accepted. How can employers make sure that they not only openly exclude but really create a intrinsically inclusive environment where employees feel they are accepted and not forced to practise self censorship?

We invite you to a panel discussion about examples of employers who have taken active measures into creating a truly inclusive work environment. What can we learn and implement in our own organisations? Representatives from academia, the trade-union, interest groups and organizations that have succeeded in working with workplace inclusion are invited to participate (TBA).

We are all nude

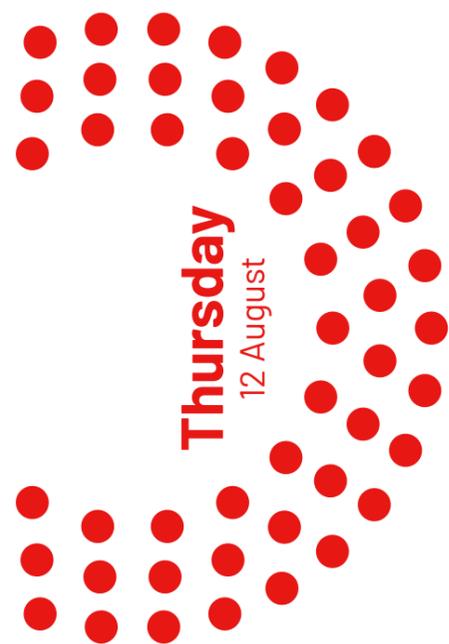

8:30 – 22:00 | Exhibited in various locations inside WorldPride House |  | Free event.

| ENG | SWE |

As life goes on, we not only dress in clothes, but also in roles. We allow ourselves to be identified by gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, ethnicity, religion, age, functional variation, profession, culture, family relationships, fetishes, etc. This can make it difficult for those we meet to see past their expectations.

If we instead want to meet undisguised, we need to lift the stigmatizing curtain of clothing.

In the exhibition, we meet people both dressed in, as well as undressed, their roles. Even though we look different when we are naked, it is only when we are completely equal.

Concert: Mimi Bay

| Grand i Parken | Free event. Book your physical ticket.

| SWE |

Multi-instrumentalist Mimi Bergman – aka mimi bay – is crafting a delicate Gen-Z spin on age-old quandaries in her small Gothenburg apartment. Jazzy chords, playful lo-fi drums and cartoon synths populate the disarming sonic world of first single ‘no doubt’. Atop the accompaniment perch sweet soft-pop vocals, intimate and vulnerable, ruminating on disconnection, uncertainty and self-doubt – lyrics set to resonate with any listener. Mimi’s impressionistic lyrics sound like a confessional diary entry, shortening the physical distance between the artist and her fans.

Acroyoga is a practice that combines the physical and mental control and awareness of yoga with the risk, playfulness and challenge of partner acrobatics. In this practice, we can play with norms (for example gender, masculine/feminine) around what it means to 'base'/ support and 'fly'/be supported, lead, follow and initiate. Listening, playfulness and connection are key to build trust, cooperate and have fun with other people in Acroyoga. You can come alone or bring a friend. Bring a yoga mat and comfortable clothes the necessary support. In this talk we'll discuss mental health in the LGBTQIA+ community, how to support our friends, suicide prevention and the work of OIPS with Linja e Jetës, Kosova's suicide prevention hotline.

Att queera fittan

12:00 - 13:00 | Purple Room |  | Free event. Book your physical ticket. Book your digital ticket.

| SWE |

What is a Cunt? What does a Cunt look like and how can it be used? In this panel discussion, queer perspectives on the pussy are highlighted based on the new book Fittskrift. Perceptions about how the Cunt should look, be talked about and used are influenced by norms for gender identity, gender and sexuality. We want to challenge these standards and show alternatives. During the conversation there is an opportunity to ask questions to the panel and together vision the cunts of the future - how will we talk about them, how will we understand them, how will we use them and what will they look like?

Afterwards, it is possible to buy the book and have it signed by the authors.

Hatred - the threat to sustainable societies

15:30 - 17:00 |  | Free event. Book your digital ticket.

| SWE |

Freedom from violence is central to creating peaceful and inclusive societies. As long as LGBTQIA+ people are exposed to hatred, threats and suffering, we cannot achieve the development we want economically, environmentally and socially. Hatred and threats prevent LGBTQIA+ people from participating in society and politics. Social, economic and political inclusion is a prerequisite for reducing inequality in the world. In order to build a sustainable society, we must actively ensure that resources and influence are distributed fairly among all people, regardless of gender identity and sexual orientation.

Movie screening with subsequent calls.

Exhibition JOSÉ LEONILSON: Leonilson – Drawn: 1975–1993

11:00 – 17:00 | Malmö Konsthall | Free event. Information about tickets.

I ENG |

José Leonilson created his personal and poetic vision in times of political and social change in his native Brazil. This exhibition Leonilson – Drawn: 1975–1993 is the first major retrospective of his work in Europe and presents a selection of 250 works, from his early paintings to the late introspective embroidery, created after he was diagnosed with AIDS, a disease untreatable at the time.

In the mid-1980s, Leonilson (1957–1993) was one of the leading artists within the movement Geração 80 (80s generation), a group rediscovering the joy of painting in the years following the end of the military dictatorship in Brazil. The artistry of Leonilson presents a broad range of mediums and styles, including paintings, textile works and sculptures, often criticizing traditional gender roles, the class society of Brazil, and the discrimination of homosexuals. When Leonilson was diagnosed with AIDS in 1991 his autobiographical work revealed his deteriorating health and a preoccupation with death. The exhibition is produced by KW Institute for Contemporary Art, Berlin, in collaboration with Moderna Museet, Malmö Konsthall and Museu de Arte Contemporânea de Serralves.

Perilous Party moves in a disintegrating and unsecured queer space. Failed internet arguments about LGBTQIA+people vs. surrogacy, mixed with mysterious, three-legged tourists from another world, and blackened rainbow flags of the sadder variety. In-Q is a wild deep dive into the boundary-breaking ocean of creative expression that queer people have always excelled at. In collaboration with Malmö Pride we present the stickiest, most glamorous and least expected.

We fill the stage for the first time with artists that pull us into their sweetly distorted worlds. Drinks and snacks in the bar, DJs who caress your ear drums and performers who tickle your senses with sharp nails and vibrating bass.

Performers will be presented on our fb and insta.

Leonilson - Drawn: 1975-1993
11:00 - 17:00 | Malmö Konsthall | Ticketed.

| ENG |

José Leonilson created his personal and poetic vision in times of political and social change in his native Brazil. This exhibition Leonilson - Drawn: 1975-1993 is the first major retrospective of his work in Europe and presents a selection of 250 works, from his early paintings to the late introspective embroidery, created after he was diagnosed with AIDS, a disease untreatable at the time.

In the mid-1980s, Leonilson (1957-1993) was one of the leading artists within the movement Geração 80 (80s generation), a group rediscovering the joy of painting in the years following the end of the military dictatorship in Brazil. The artistry of Leonilson presents a broad range of mediums and styles, including paintings, textile works and sculptures, often criticizing traditional gender roles, the class society of Brazil, and the discrimination of homosexuals. When Leonilson was diagnosed with AIDS in 1991 his autobiographical work revealed his deteriorating health and a preoccupation with death.

The exhibition is produced by KW Institute for Contemporary Art, Berlin, in collaboration with Moderna Museet, Malmö Konsthall and Museu de Arte Contemporânea de Serralves.

Failed internet arguments about LGBTQIA+ people vs. surrogacy, mixed with mysterious, three-legged tourists from another world, and blackened rainbow flags of the sadder variety. Leif Holmstrand is an artist, a writer and a musician. Lesbian sports stars - a conversation with Moa Svan

11:30 - 12:30 | Purple Room |  | Free event. Book your physical ticket. Book your digital ticket.

| ENG | SWE |

Lesbian sports stars have built football to what it is today. And still do. Is it not time for us lesbian football fans to be proud of this? Or are the lesbian relationships something that should be kept private, and something that we who really like football should not talk about? Is the interest in lesbian drama within Rosengård's football club an unhealthy craving for sex and filth?

After conversations with Jeanette Vante Rosengren and Caroline Jönsson, Moa Svan, in the new anthology on LGBTQIA+ history in Malmö, has revived the Malmö lesbian football saga. From the witch hunt for lesbian football stars through the 1980s, 1990s and 2000s to the relaxation of the culture of silence we see today. From home parties at 'Lappen och Lena' to visits to café Rosa Molnet where football girls met both the so-called 'suburban-girls' and the lesbian feminists.

14:00 - 15:00 | White Room |  | Free event. Book your physical ticket. Book your digital ticket.

Emil Kléen (1868-1898) was a poet, journalist and author from Sätöfta outside Höör in Scania and was active mainly in Lund and Malmö in the late 1800s, close friend of the famous Swedish author August Strindberg and died far too young in the aftermath of tuberculosis and syphilis. He loved absinthe, literature, romanticizing decadence and death in the spirit of Baudelaire, writing sheer poems about girls and the bright nights of June - and he may also have loved men. Was there anything unredeemed in Emil Kléen? This is something that Arvida Juni Svenske, poet, author, journalist and trans person, tries to investigate in her essay in Malmö University's queer anthology. Arvida works as a freelance journalist and is studying to become a Folk High School teacher.

José Leonilson created his personal and poetic vision in times of political and social change in his native Brazil. This exhibition Leonilson – Drawn: 1975–1993 is the first major retrospective of his work in Europe and presents a selection of 250 works, from his early paintings to the late introspective embroidery, created after he was diagnosed with AIDS, a disease untreatable at the time.

In the mid-1980s, Leonilson (1957–1993) was one of the leading artists within the movement Geração 80 (80s generation), a group rediscovering the joy of painting in the years following the end of the military dictatorship in Brazil. The artistry of Leonilson presents a broad range of mediums and styles, including paintings, textile works and sculptures, often criticizing traditional gender roles, the class society of Brazil, and the discrimination of homosexuals. When Leonilson was diagnosed with AIDS in 1991 his autobiographical work revealed his deteriorating health and a preoccupation with death.

The exhibition is produced by KW Institute for Contemporary Art, Berlin, in collaboration with Moderna Museet, Malmö Konsthall and Museu de Arte Contemporânea de Serralves.

How to do things with Romance: a prologue - Ellen Söderhult

Dance performance at Palladium
As a notion romance holds a spectra of feelings such as passion, affinity, affection, tenderness, empathy, compassion and devotion. But romance is also a socio-cultural construction. 13 dancers and two drummers throw themselves into an experiment in which ballet becomes a team sport and notions of romance are re-interpreted. Taking its cue from the etymological root of dance and ballet, ballein, to throw, How to do things with Romance willfully throws itself off balance and casts aside conventional ideas of romance, in order to re-purpose and perform it anew. Welcome to a riot grrri-influenced, sporty punk ballet!

The rules for blood donation 2021 - what happen?

RFSU and Regnbågsblod invite to panel discussions on current blood donation rules for men who have sex with men! On the first of May, new rules for blood donation were introduced, which affect men who have sex with men (MSM) who want to contribute by donating blood. The new rules were not what RFSU and Rainbow Blood had hoped for, despite signals of a shortening of the unreasonably long waiting period for men who have sex with men. What was actually the result of the National Board of Health and Welfare's investigation? Why are we not happy with the result? What do the rules mean in practice for MSM who want to donate blood? What is required for Sweden, like some other countries already done, to be able to introduce blood donation rules that would mean greater access to blood?

What is discriminatory behaviour and what safety net exists? How are LGBTQIA+ persons discriminated against in the workplace and what can I do if this happens to me? How many times do I have to stand down from being appointed to a certain position on the basis that I do not conform to norms in the workplace? Is it enough that I feel excluded in different contexts or how serious must the exclusion be before I can raise the issue? Could a power imbalance be a contributing factor to the emergence of discrimination and how do we view it from an intersectional perspective?

A sexist comment that you are only lesbian because you haven't found the right man yet? Are the experiences of LGBTQIA+ persons different from those who express heteronormativity? To whom do I turn? But, above all, where do I draw the line and how passive should I be when I see someone being harassed? We employ an intersectional perspective on harassment in order to determine the governing structures and how the power imbalance influences our views on sexual harassment.

| ENG |

José Leonilson created his personal and poetic vision in times of political and social change in his native Brazil. This exhibition Leonilson – Drawn: 1975–1993 is the first major retrospective of his work in Europe and presents a selection of 250 works, from his early paintings to the late introspective embroidery, created after he was diagnosed with AIDS, a disease untreatable at the time.

In the mid-1980s, Leonilson (1957–1993) was one of the leading artists within the movement Geração 80 (80s generation), a group rediscovering the joy of painting in the years following the end of the military dictatorship in Brazil. The artistry of Leonilson presents a broad range of mediums and styles, including paintings, textile works and sculptures, often criticizing traditional gender roles, the class society of Brazil, and the discrimination of homosexuals. When Leonilson was diagnosed with AIDS in 1991 his autobiographical work revealed his deteriorating health and a preoccupation with death.

The exhibition is produced by KW Institute for Contemporary Art, Berlin, in collaboration with Moderna Museet, Malmö Konsthall and Museu de Arte Contemporânea de Serralves.

I am a boardmember of RFSU Stockholm, a part of the team behind The Free Relationship Group, and a political activist. My mission is the modernization of family law, securing the right to form a chosen family constellation without being excluded from the social security system, in case it transcends the norm of two. A panel of sex workers discuss the current situation in Sweden with a focus on LGBTQIA+ and migrant sex workers, and the effects of the Swedish model together with sociologist researcher Niina Vuolajärvi and ICRSE's program officer Sabrina Sanchez. José Leonilson created his personal and poetic vision in times of political and social change in his native Brazil. In the mid-1980s, Leonilson (1957-1993) was one of the leading artists within the movement Geração 80 (80s generation), a group rediscovering the joy of painting in the years following the end of the military dictatorship in Brazil. The artistry of Leonilson presents a broad range of mediums and styles, including paintings, textile works and sculptures, often criticizing traditional gender roles, the class society of Brazil, and the discrimination of homosexuals. When Leonilson was diagnosed with AIDS in 1991 his autobiographical work revealed his deteriorating health and a preoccupation with death.

Opera is coming out!

The LGBTQIA+ family is an important part of the staff, artists, audience, and partners of all great opera houses around the world. To celebrate Pride is a natural part of who we are. But what do we aim to achieve by committing? How do we work with inclusion and diversity? Malmö Opera and The Royal Danish Opera of Copenhagen meet on stage and are joined online by The Met in New York, that participated in the WorldPride of 2019 and Sydney Opera House in Sydney where events will take place in 2023. The host is the Swedish opera singer Rickard Söderberg.

We are all nude

08:00 - 20:00 | Exhibited in various locations inside WorldPride House |  | Free event.

| ENG | SWE |

As life goes on, we not only dress in clothes, but also in roles. We allow ourselves to be identified by gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, ethnicity, religion, age, functional variation, profession, culture, family relationships, fetishes, etc. This can make it difficult for those we meet to see past their expectations.

If we instead want to meet undisguised, we need to lift the stigmatizing curtain of clothing.

In the exhibition, we meet people both dressed in, as well as undressed, their roles. Even though we look different when we are naked, it is only when we are completely equal.

LGBTQIA+ rights under attack. The anti-gender movements in Europe

08:30 - 09:30 | Green Room |  | Free event. ~~Book your physical ticket.~~ Book your digital ticket.

| ENG |

In Europe, conservative and far right movements have been challenging LGBTQIA+ rights in the last decade under the umbrella of the anti-gender movement. Across many European countries, activists from the anti-gender movement attempt to hinder, or roll back progressive legislations on topics such as women's rights, transpeople's rights and inclusive family policies. What are the goals and strategies of this movement and how can we counter them?

How can sport create sustainable, inclusive societies?

| SWE |

How can sport create sustainable, inclusive societies? Sport is a positive force in society. We want to highlight positive examples and work together to develop concrete activities.

Many faces of the opposition and global resilience of LGBTQIA+ movements

| ENG |

The session will take 60 minutes (if it's possible to have 75 minutes, even better) and bring together representatives of RFSL partner organizations in different countries (including Eastern Europe). The aim of the event is to bring together experiences of LGBTQIA+ activists from different parts of the world in relation to the opposition they face (on national and international level), how it differs from context to context and what trends are common. The event will also have a proactive outlook discussing how activists navigate these challenges, what are their resistance strategies and what joint efforts are required in global advocacy fora. We also want to show that the opposition is not something that only occurs in the Global South and East and Sweden (as other states in Global North) faces its own challenges (including with trans exclusionary movements).

This lecture is about children with a transgender identity and their rights according to the four basic principles of the Convention on the Rights of the Children. A lecture that highlights the importance of acknowledging and supporting children and young people with a transgender identity.

The mental illness among children and young people today with a transgender identity is higher than ever. What happens when you're not noticed or seen and your rights are taken away from you? When you grow up and others think and claim you someone else. When the body does not match the image that society presents is you.

Camilla is taking you on a journey from her own experience from her family and from her work with young transgender children and their families - on the importance to love and let your child be who they are, and why it's important that society acknowledge transgender children and their rights.

The studies will illustrate the actual day-to-day meaning of living with HIV and compare the burden-evaluation of these experiences between MSM living with HIV and the HIV-negative MSM. For the latter, these are perceptions of burden and those perceptions feed attitudes and possible stigma. An additional study explores the perception of severity of HIV infection among HIV-negative individuals and how such perception can relate to sexual risk taking. In conclusion, Udi will present data on the profiles of those who never test for HIV and how hypothetical perceptions regarding the impact of HIV shape the profile of never-testers.

Cross-dressing, gay bashing and true love: Gay men's subculture in Malmö 1911-1940

16:30-17:30 | Purple Room |  | Free event. ~~Book your physical ticket.~~ Book your digital ticket.

| SWE |

Same-sex sexual acts were forbidden until 1944 in Sweden, for both women and men. No women were prosecuted in Malmö but a large number of men. Through court records and police reports, we can reconstruct gay men's subculture in Malmö during the first half of the 20th century: where they met, how they socialised and also how they thought about themselves and their sexual orientation. The lecture focuses on how transgender expressions were part of the early gay subculture, and how prostitution, extortion and trips to Copenhagen were also part of the picture. It was a hard life and many suffered from the condemnation of the surrounding society, but there was also room for true love.

Jens Rydström is a professor of gender studies at Lund University and has researched queer history during the 19th and 20th centuries. He has published many books on the history of sexuality and is the author of Sinners and citizens: Bestiality and homosexuality in Sweden, 1880-1950 (University of Chicago Press 2003) and Odd couples: A history of gay marriage in Scandinavia (University of Amsterdam Press 2011).

José Leonilson created his personal and poetic vision in times of political and social change in his native Brazil. This exhibition Leonilson – Drawn: 1975–1993 is the first major retrospective of his work in Europe and presents a selection of 250 works, from his early paintings to the late introspective embroidery, created after he was diagnosed with AIDS, a disease untreatable at the time.

In the mid-1980s, Leonilson (1957–1993) was one of the leading artists within the movement Geração 80 (80s generation), a group rediscovering the joy of painting in the years following the end of the military dictatorship in Brazil. The artistry of Leonilson presents a broad range of mediums and styles, including paintings, textile works and sculptures, often criticizing traditional gender roles, the class society of Brazil, and the discrimination of homosexuals. When Leonilson was diagnosed with AIDS in 1991 his autobiographical work revealed his deteriorating health and a preoccupation with death.

The exhibition is produced by KW Institute for Contemporary Art, Berlin, in collaboration with Moderna Museet, Malmö Konsthall and Museu de Arte Contemporânea de Serralves.

| SWE |
What emerges when we look at an art collection from a queer perspective? Can a museum tell us something about the duality of absence and presence? The exhibition (in)visible departs from Malmö Art Museum's collection, presenting artworks ranging from the early 20th century to the current day. It also includes archival material from the RFSL archive and Malmö Stadsarkiv (Malmö City Archives) echoing LGBTQIA+ narratives connected to the city. The curatorial approach for (in)visible expanded beyond the walls of the museum, engaging local artists, researchers and youth groups in a series of conversations and workshops.

Leif Holmstrand Perilous Party 14:00 - 18:30 | Inkonst | Ticketed

| ENG | SWE |
Malmö's best artist fills our spaces with crochet, trash, sad flags and peculiar objects. It's art that makes you laugh with tears in your throat, that makes you think about bodies and dreams, art that is never predictable. Perilous Party moves in a disintegrating and unsecured queer space. Failed internet arguments about LGBTQIA+ people vs. surrogacy, mixed with mysterious, three-legged tourists from another world, and blackened rainbow flags of the sadder variety. Leif Holmstrand is an artist, a writer and a musician. As an artist he works polyphonically and boundary breaking: textile techniques, trash and waste goes hand in hand with sound, text, film, action and sculpture.

He's made a name for himself with his vibrating, almost electric live shows where he combines vocalist virtuosity with hyper physical choreography. From the clubs and galleries of the queer underground to MoMa and the legendary New York Venue The Kitchen, where his opera The Fool sold out not less than three times in a row (!).

Wednesday 18 August

Day 1 of the Inclusive Sports Forum is a Swedish speaking programme presented by Malmö stad, RF-SISU Skåne and Riksidrottsförbundet (the Swedish Sports Confederation Riksidrottsförbundet).

Representatives from our local associations Malbas Basket, Crime City Rollers and FC Rosengård share the spotlight with speakers from SHL and RFSL, and our keynote speakers Lukas Svärd and Caroline Jönsson. Drawing from personal experiences and examples from working within an association, the panel debates provide a platform for the sports community to exchange ideas and strategies for inclusion.

Thursday 19 August

Day 2 of the Inclusive Sports Forum invites an international, English speaking crowd. Malmö stad has invited three prominent athletes to come share their stories with us: internationally renowned ice hockey player Maria Rooth, Sweden's household favourite dancer and choreographer Tobias Karlsson and Lotta Schelin - one of the best football players in Sweden. Host for the day is opera singer and LGBTQIA+ activist Rickard Söderberg.

We are all nude

08:00 - 20:00 | Exhibited in various locations inside WorldPride House |  | Free event.

| ENG | SWE |

As life goes on, we not only dress in clothes, but also in roles. We allow ourselves to be identified by gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, ethnicity, religion, age, functional variation, profession, culture, family relationships, fetishes, etc. This can make it difficult for those we meet to see past their expectations.

If we instead want to meet undisguised, we need to lift the stigmatizing curtain of clothing.

In the exhibition, we meet people both dressed in, as well as undressed, their roles. Even though we look different when we are naked, it is only when we are completely equal.

Refugees are frequently incorrectly referred to as being a homogenous group with the same characteristics, challenges, or needs. In the context of LGBTQIA+ refugee, it is highly inaccurate and might contribute to the perceived sameness and invisibility of queer refugees for the wider public.

Through dance, performance, music, installation and film we tear apart and deflower whatever comes our way with great love and tenderness. To us, it's all about creating a playful, empowering relational dynamic. Through collectivity we create space for uncensored and joyful expression. Over the years, many other performers have been part of our ensemble. We collaborate with curator William Hall and creative platform HUD SPACE.

11:00 – 17:00 | Malmö Konsthall | Free event. Information about tickets.

José Leonilson created his personal and poetic vision in times of political and social change in his native Brazil. This exhibition Leonilson – Drawn: 1975–1993 is the first major retrospective of his work in Europe and presents a selection of 250 works, from his early paintings to the late introspective embroidery, created after he was diagnosed with AIDS, a disease untreatable at the time.

In the mid-1980s, Leonilson (1957–1993) was one of the leading artists within the movement Geração 80 (80s generation), a group rediscovering the joy of painting in the years following the end of the military dictatorship in Brazil. The artistry of Leonilson presents a broad range of mediums and styles, including paintings, textile works and sculptures, often criticizing traditional gender roles, the class society of Brazil, and the discrimination of homosexuals. When Leonilson was diagnosed with AIDS in 1991 his autobiographical work revealed his deteriorating health and a preoccupation with death.

The exhibition is produced by KW Institute for Contemporary Art, Berlin, in collaboration with Moderna Museet, Malmö Konsthall and Museu de Arte Contemporânea de Serralves.

We are all nude

08:00 - 20:00 | Exhibited in various locations inside WorldPride House | Free event.

As life goes on, we not only dress in clothes, but also in roles. We allow ourselves to be identified by gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, ethnicity, religion, age, functional variation, profession, culture, family relationships, fetishes, etc. This can make it difficult for those we meet to see past their expectations.

If we instead want to meet undisguised, we need to lift the stigmatizing curtain of clothing.

In the exhibition, we meet people both dressed in, as well as undressed, their roles. Even though we look different when we are naked, it is only when we are completely equal.

Dare to Care is a collaboration between the Swedish network for live music organizers and the national organization for sexual education. We provide with trainings and communication materials. The trainings bring up how one, both as an organization and as an individual, can be prepared to act. And how to take care of something that has gone wrong - to ensure victims are taken care of and get the support they need. You also get a chance to reflect on norms and values that instead boost the behavior that can promote a culture where sexual mutuality is the norm.

During the conversation, teachers and those responsible for the Police Program in Malmö discuss how to work with power analysis and hate crimes with the goal of educating police officers who can act more consciously and professionally and contribute to influencing both the police organization and the public's perception of the police. But the conversation is also about democracy and everyone's access to the police, both as employees and citizens, as victims of crime. Exhibition JOSÉ LEONILSON: Leonilson – Drawn: 1975–1993 11:00 – 17:00 | Malmö Konsthall | Free event. Information about tickets.

| ENG |

José Leonilson created his personal and poetic vision in times of political and social change in his native Brazil. This exhibition Leonilson – Drawn: 1975–1993 is the first major retrospective of his work in Europe and presents a selection of 250 works, from his early paintings to the late introspective embroidery, created after he was diagnosed with AIDS, a disease untreatable at the time.

In the mid-1980s, Leonilson (1957–1993) was one of the leading artists within the movement Geração 80 (80s generation), a group rediscovering the joy of painting in the years following the end of the military dictatorship in Brazil. The artistry of Leonilson presents a broad range of mediums and styles, including paintings, textile works and sculptures, often criticizing traditional gender roles, the class society of Brazil, and the discrimination of homosexuals. When Leonilson was diagnosed with AIDS in 1991 his autobiographical work revealed his deteriorating health and a preoccupation with death.

The exhibition is produced by KW Institute for Contemporary Art, Berlin, in collaboration with Moderna Museet, Malmö Konsthall and Museu de Arte Contemporânea de Serralves.

We are all nude
08:00 - 20:00 | Exhibited in various locations inside WorldPride House |  | Free event.

| ENG | SWE |

As life goes on, we not only dress in clothes, but also in roles. We allow ourselves to be identified by gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, ethnicity, religion, age, functional variation, profession, culture, family relationships, fetishes, etc. This can make it difficult for those we meet to see past their expectations.

If we instead want to meet undisguised, we need to lift the stigmatizing curtain of clothing.

In the exhibition, we meet people both dressed in, as well as undressed, their roles. Even though we look different when we are naked, it is only when we are completely equal.

Ace of Baes is a series of video portrayals where twelve asexuals step forward from a position of being marginalized, to raise awareness on a group of queers that face many false assumptions based on stereotypes and prejudice. Asexuals share similar forms of heteronormative oppression as many gay and trans people; Being misdiagnosed and wrongly medicated, victims of corrective rape and misinformed about their queerness being valid, leaving only choices of hiding their true identity or living a life as outcasts. Some of the Ace of Baes featured in the documentary are model Yasmin Benoit (UK), actress Noreen Quadir (US) and the ace activists Sebastian Wolf Mohlin (SWE), Vesper Hill aka QueerAsCat (JAP) and Harris-Hijiri (JAP). Ace of Baes is a movement, a proud community of those that identify within the ace spectrum and who have #genuinelyNOfuckstogive.

Ace of Baes has previously been screened at AMOQA: Athens Museum of Queer Arts, Thessaloniki Queer Arts Festival and Athens Pride Week (GRC), Flux Factory in New York for Utopia School (USA), Reykjavik Fringe Fest (ISL) as well as Stockholm Fringe Fest, Malmö Queer Film Festival and Uppsala Pride (SWE).

To work with outreach sexual information in Malmö's erotic oases during the 1990s

16:30-17:30 | Orange Room |  | Free event. Book your physical ticket. Book your digital ticket.

| SWE |

Men have always met in secluded places for sexual adventures. So also in Malmö. A special type of arena for sexual encounters between men in the 1990s consisted of the city's parks, beaches, dense shrubs or public toilets. It is in these places that for a couple of years in the 1990s I had the privilege of working outreach with e.g. calls and distribution of condoms and lubricants. Before writing my text, I have also met three men, who shared their stories and experiences, and who I weave together with my own recollections. Welcome to Malmö's erotic oases!

Jack Lukkerz is a sexologist and researcher at Malmö University and has previously worked at RFSL Rådgivningen Skåne.

The lecture is complemented by staged readings from the plays.

José Leonilson created his personal and poetic vision in times of political and social change in his native Brazil. This exhibition Leonilson - Drawn: 1975-1993 is the first major retrospective of his work in Europe and presents a selection of 250 works, from his early paintings to the late introspective embroidery, created after he was diagnosed with AIDS, a disease untreatable at the time.

In the mid-1980s, Leonilson (1957-1993) was one of the leading artists within the movement Geração 80 (80s generation), a group rediscovering the joy of painting in the years following the end of the military dictatorship in Brazil. The artistry of Leonilson presents a broad range of mediums and styles, including paintings, textile works and sculptures, often criticizing traditional gender roles, the class society of Brazil, and the discrimination of homosexuals. When Leonilson was diagnosed with AIDS in 1991 his autobiographical work revealed his deteriorating health and a preoccupation with death. The exhibition is produced by KW Institute for Contemporary Art, Berlin, in collaboration with Moderna Museet, Malmö Konsthall and Museu de Arte Contemporânea de Serralves.

Welcome to a newly written humorous odyssey in a lesbian universe! With warmth and comedy, we explore the ups and downs, the pleasure and anguish of lesbianism. There will be sweat, tears and secretions, grand entrances and lovesick scenes. Through contemporary and historical references, lesbian joy, sorrow and insult are examined. We give you Lindsay Lohan's doubts, Sappho's stubbornness, Selma Lagerlöf's wild nights and a meeting with your inner lesbian child.

HIGHER is a dance performance inspired and based on the experience of clubbing and club dancing. Such form of dance, which is not easily ascribed to any category, taking the cultural role of a social dance and also at times featuring various techniques, styles and influences, is extremely explicative of what ultimately seems to be the purpose of dancing, intended as a human form of expression.

Lotic

Lotic is bending the very boundaries of dance music, all whilst reflecting on subjects such as race, sexuality and gender. She was born and raised in Houston but has been a pivotal person in the adventurous club scene of Berlin for almost a decade. Classically schooled – but unapologetically avant-garde in her own expression, Lotic has made a name for herself through highly acclaimed AV shows at festivals such as CTM and Sonár and done remixes for none other than Björk, who dubbed her One of the fiercest performer DJs I have ever heard.

We are all nude

08:00 - 20:00 | Exhibited in various locations inside WorldPride House |  | Free event.

| ENG | SWE |

As life goes on, we not only dress in clothes, but also in roles. We allow ourselves to be identified by gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, ethnicity, religion, age, functional variation, profession, culture, family relationships, fetishes, etc. This can make it difficult for those we meet to see past their expectations.

If we instead want to meet undisguised, we need to lift the stigmatizing curtain of clothing.

In the exhibition, we meet people both dressed in, as well as undressed, their roles. Even though we look different when we are naked, it is only when we are completely equal.

Information about tickets.

| ENG |

José Leonilson created his personal and poetic vision in times of political and social change in his native Brazil. This exhibition Leonilson - Drawn: 1975-1993 is the first major retrospective of his work in Europe and presents a selection of 250 works, from his early paintings to the late introspective embroidery, created after he was diagnosed with AIDS, a disease untreatable at the time.

In the mid-1980s, Leonilson (1957-1993) was one of the leading artists within the movement Geração 80 (80s generation), a group rediscovering the joy of painting in the years following the end of the military dictatorship in Brazil. The artistry of Leonilson presents a broad range of mediums and styles, including paintings, textile works and sculptures, often criticizing traditional gender roles, the class society of Brazil, and the discrimination of homosexuals. When Leonilson was diagnosed with AIDS in 1991 his autobiographical work revealed his deteriorating health and a preoccupation with death.

The exhibition is produced by KW Institute for Contemporary Art, Berlin, in collaboration with Moderna Museet, Malmö Konsthall and Museu de Arte Contemporânea de Serralves.

Malmö's best artist fills our spaces with crochet, trash, sad flags and peculiar objects. It's art that makes you laugh with tears in your throat, that makes you think about bodies and dreams, art that is never predictable. Perilous Party moves in a disintegrating and unsecured queer space. Failed internet arguments about LGBTQIA+people vs. surrogacy, mixed with mysterious, three-legged tourists from another world, and blackened rainbow flags of the sadder variety. Leif Holmstrand is an artist, a writer and a musician. As an artist he works polyphonically and boundary breaking: textile techniques, trash and waste goes hand in hand with sound, text, film, action and sculpture.
